The patriotism of the large assembly was demonstrated when the United States Marine Band, under the direction of Prof. Frank J. Weber, played "The Star-Spangled Banner." A great cheer went up in evidence of the earnest suport of the people in the country's port of the people in the crisis.

Preceding the grand march. Senator Saulsbury of Delaware briefly addressed the crowd in eulogy of the sisters who have St. Ann's Infant Asylum under their care. "Some one has toid me," said Senator Saulsbury, "that the lives of 7,000 children have been made better and brighter by the kindly ministrations, the education and attention they have received in this asylum."

The speaker made reference to the crisis in the southern republic, saying that the asylum may yet be called on to care for some of the children of the men who give up their lives in support of the honor of their country against Mexico.

It is the desire of the War Department that the militia regiments at once be recruited to their full war strengt, in case they should be needed later on. The department hopes, incidentally, to attract men who are desirous of enlisting, to the regular militia, and not to volunteer regiments which would not be organized and disciplined sufficiently to make them thoroughly available for use in conjunction with the regular army.
